The Annual Administration Report on Panchayats for 1933-34.

THE number of Panchayats had increased by the end of 1933-34 from 1,077 to 1,108, 50 having been created during the year, and 19 (shown in the statements appended to this report among the 1,127 Panchayats), having been abolished during the year. The Lahore Division kept its place at the head of the list, its total at the end of the year standing at 389. This total, however, shows a slight decrease, in contrast with the rapid rises during the two previous years; but the Commissioner considers that the weeding out of the weaker Panchayats and an unwillingness on the part of officials to proceed hastily with the programme of expansion, is all to the good. The greatest advance is recorded in the Rawalpindi Division, where the number rose from 106 to 118, 20 new Panchayats having been created and 8 abolished. Of the new Panchayats 16 were in the Rawalpindi District, most of them in the Murree Tahsil, and it would appear, although it is not specifically mentioned in the reports of the Commissioner and the Deputy Commissioner, that these new Panchayats were selected from the experimental Panchayats, not previously notified under the Panchayat Act, the notification of which was suggested by Government in previous reviews. Rawalpindi Division, however, with three very lame ducks, viz., Shahpur, which still has no Panchayat, Mianwali with only 2, and Jhelum with 8, lags a long way behind the other Divisions. The reason for this is not stated in the Commissioner's report; and, while the Deputy Commissioner, Shahpur, submitted no report at all, although it would have been interesting to know what efforts were made to implement the Panchayat Act, the Mianwali Deputy Commissioner attributes the failure of the movement to the existence of "local feuds", and to the fact that "the Panchayat system is not popular". The Government, however, are inclined to believe that the chief drag on the wheels of progress of the movement is the opposition to it of the territorial magnates and leaders, and their jealousy of rival authorities for settling the disputes of the countryside. It is the earnest hope of Government that, if this is so, the Commissioner and Deputy Commissioners will do their utmost to convince the chief men of those districts of the advantages of the system.

2. Previous reviews have called attention to the comparative insignificance of the financial resources of the Panchayats. In the year 1933-34 the total income was slightly lower than in the previous year, viz., Rs. 60,515 and it would have been considerably lower, but for a windfall of Rs. 1,488, consisting of a refund, to the Panchayats of Gujrat District, of contributions which in 1924 had been collected from villages for the repair of demarcation pillars, but never spent. Again, only a negligible amount was realised under sections 35 and 36 of the Panchayat Act (the village rate which a Panchayat may raise in connection with the performance of its duties, with the District Board's sanction, and the special rate which, in connection with expenditure on certain other duties, the Panchayat may levy in accordance with resolutions confirmed by 2/3rds majority of the male rate payers), viz., Rs. 154 and Rs. 99 respectively. In this connection, it may be observed that the original expectations of Government in respect of these provisions have not been realised. It was presumed that in all or most villages where a Panchayat is established there would be a list of persons assessed to the village rate under Section 35, and that the male residents appearing on this list would be assessed, according to requirements, to a special rate by the Panchayat under section 36. The unwillingness of villagers to tax themselves, however, has from the outset been a feature of Panchayat administration ; and on this subject the remarks of the Commissioner of the Lahore Division (Mr. Mitchell) may be quoted :—

“ So long as Panchayats refrain from raising funds under the provisions of the Act, there is some hope of advance on the right lines. But as soon as a Panchayat transforms itself into a tax assessing and tax collecting agency it has lost all chances of winning the confidence of its constituents. Voluntary contributions by public spirited persons may in certain cases provide ways and means, but voluntary co-operation and pooling of effort is what the villager in the Punjab really understands, and it is by this line that the only real hope of advance can be looked for. The Punjabi, whether in the villages or in the towns, is above all things suspicious of the collection or administration of public funds by his neighbours, and it is this distrust which makes the townsman put up with a deplorably low standard of municipal administration rather than agree to an increase in taxation which alone can make urban improvements possible. Above all things the Panchayat villages must be saved from the fate of the Small Towns. Rural reconstruction depends on the villager himself and unless panchayats realise this and in their turn educate their constituents into a policy of self help, real constructive work is not likely to result. ”

There is considerable endorsement of these views in other reports. The Government are, however, inclined to think that voluntary effort of villages, reinforced by the power and prestige of the Panchayats, and these in turn stimulated by the propaganda and co-operation of the Rural Reconstruction, Agriculture and Co-operative Departments, the District Community Councils, and the officials concerned, is the preliminary necessity ; and once the rural population have realised the advantages of up-to-date sanitary measures, their distaste for a moderate amount of taxation for these purposes may disappear. They will do well to remember that the striking progress made by Village Panchayats of Mysore State (which had in March 1932, 10,582 Panchayats) has not been effected without a considerable measure of taxation, the proceeds of which go towards works of conservancy and sanitation, water supply, medical relief and lighting.

Other main sources of income arose out of the judicial work of the Panchayats, which, as explained below, was their main pre-occupation ; and as their activity in this direction showed a slight decrease during the year under report there was a corresponding decline in the income. Thus, the yield from fines imposed in criminal cases fell from Rs. 3,472 to Rs. 2,543, the fees in civil suits from Rs. 9,985 to Rs. 7,821, and in criminal cases from Rs. 1,538 to Rs. 1,267, and the income from process fees from Rs. 6,922 to Rs. 5,072. In spite, however, of this shrinkage of the chief sources of income, the total income was about the same, for the extraneous cause above-mentioned.

In previous reviews it has been pointed out that the malba fund (defined in section 34 of the Act as a fund collected for the common secular purposes of the village) should, strictly speaking, be handed over, when a Panchayat is founded, to the Panchayat fund. The reports for 1933-34 mention several examples of such funds being handed over, and also several examples of Lambardars resolutely refusing to do so, on the ground that the malba was entrusted to them for the entertainment and feeding of village guests.

The expenditure, already negligible in previous years, showed a considerable drop from over Rs. 29,000 to Rs. 25,000, or an average expenditure of Rs. 22 for each Panchayat per annum. Apart from miscellaneous expenditure of about Rs. 10,000 (of which details have not been supplied), the only considerable items are sums spent, under section 14 of the Act, on roads and drains, and on repair of wells and tanks, and the Panchayats which appear to have been most active in such works were ten Panchayats of Lyallpur, which spent Rs. 1,045, and some Panchayats of Muzaffargarh District, which expended Rs. 735, on these objects. On such important matters as improvement of agriculture and agricultural stock, public gardens and playgrounds, promotion of cottage industries, and arboriculture and lighting, the amounts spent were exiguous in the extreme. In other words, as the reports do not indicate that any of these works were carried out by voluntary labour, it is clear that the Panchayats have hardly been performing their administrative functions at all; and such sanitary measures as have been carried out in the villages, apart from water supply projects of the Sanitary Board, and anti-disease measures of the Health Department, were effected by Sanitary Committees appointed under section 56 of the District Board Act.

Judicial. There was a distinct fall in the number of cases, both criminal and civil, tried by the Panchayats. Thus, the total number of criminal cases fell from 4,106 to 3,753, and the number of accused persons from 5,498 to 5,896, and the total number of civil suits from 16,061 to 18,583. The statistics, however, suggest, although the point is not discussed in the reports, that this decline may be due to villagers treating Panchayat litigation more seriously, and recognising the futility of bringing frivolous cases. Thus, in spite of the decrease in the number of criminal cases, the number of persons convicted rose from 1,108 to 1,231, while there was only a slight fall in the number of civil decrees in spite of a very great decline in the number of cases. A feature of the criminal jurisdiction is a considerable increase in the number of cases tried under section 23, i. e., of cases under sections 323 and 504 of the Indian Penal Code referred to Panchayat by magistrates. Even so, however, the number is inconsiderable, viz., 325 and the Government would again impress upon District Magistrates the desirability of this power being more extensively utilised by magistrates. Another noteworthy feature is that, whereas the number of civil cases in which there was a re-trial under section 31-A, by a joint Panchayat after an application to the Deputy Commissioner from a party aggrieved by a non-unanimous decision increased from 12 to 91, the number of criminal cases so tried fell from 77 to 12.

Supervision. The Government is gratified to learn that in the Rawalpindi District senior officials, including the Deputy Commissioner, the Revenue Assistant and the Sub-Divisional Officer, Murree, were able to inspect a considerable number of Panchayats. It does not appear that there were many inspections elsewhere, beyond those of the Honorary Panchayat Officers, a large number of whom have been appointed for districts or parts of districts throughout the province. In some cases these appointments are reported to have been successful, particularly in the Multan Division, while in others, especially in the Jhelum District, they have been able to effect very little; and now that they have had experience of the working of Panchayats without supervision by salaried Panchayat Officers, who were abolished as a measure of economy in 1931, most of the Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners express the opinion that the movement has suffered, and remained in a condition of stagnation, as a result. The Government agree with this conclusion, and have decided to appoint salaried Panchayat Officers for most of the districts.

Panchayat Officers. Previous Panchayat Officers were unable to stimulate the Panchayats to do much in the way of village improvement and sanitation. The Government hopes that the new officers will regard themselves, and be regarded, as part of the district machinery for beneficent work in rural areas, keeping in touch with the officers of other departments engaged in such work, and assisting the Agricultural Department in such work as improved agricultural methods and good seed propaganda (duties of Panchayats under section 15 of the Act), and keeping in close touch with the District Medical Officer of Health. It has been pointed out in previous reviews that, for the countryside to get the maximum of benefit from the Panchayat system, it is essential that there should be close co-operation between such bodies as District Boards, Panchayats and the District Community Councils, and the Government trust that the Deputy Commissioners and other heads of departments will always keep in mind the Panchayat as an agency for works of rural uplift.

So far, however, there are Panchayats in only 1,108 out of the 36,942 villages of the province, and it will doubtless, and should, be the aim of Panchayat Officers to aim at bringing about the same state of things as, for example, in Mysore, where there are few villages without a Panchayat. The Government desires, however, that Panchayat Officers, under the guidance of Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners, should carry out this spade-work with caution. Before recommending the establishment of a new Panchayat, the Panchayat Officer should have made an exhaustive study of the special circumstances of the village. It is obvious that success will be less problematic in small villages, with a homogeneous population, free from village or tribal feuds, and possessing potential Panchayat members wielding influence and authority; and it would be advisable to deal with all such villages, for combinations of them, before going on to larger villages. Again, in many districts there are ancient indigenous Panchayats, which have long functioned successfully, though with more limited objectives than the statutory Panchayats. An intensive study of the method of such Panchayats is necessary, and Panchayat Officers should consider carefully whether it is advisable for such Panchayats to continue on their own lines, or for the new type to be grafted on the old.

While it will be apparent from the foregoing remarks to what extent the objects of the provincial legislature in passing the Punjab Village Panchayat Act of 1922, have been fulfilled, the position may be summed up in the words of the Commissioners. The position in the Rawalpindi Division is summed up by the Commissioner (Mr. Macnabb) as follows:—

“Shahpur District is still without a Panchayat, and Mianwali has shown no signs of progress in this direction. Although 4 new Panchayats have been gazetted in Jhelum District and action is being taken to set up two more, only one Panchayat (Bhikhari Kalan) is doing any real work. It is disappointing to learn that party feeling has come into being even in this Panchayat and that there are many complaints against it. These three districts are too individualistic for Panchayats to flourish. On the other hand progress in Rawalpindi District appears to be steady and the hill tracts appear to be the most suitable ground for, this sort of local self-Government;” and still gloomier is the picture drawn by one of the Deputy Commissioners of that division, viz., of Jhelum (Mr. Innes):—

“This district is vitiated by party feeling from top to bottom and this factor is chiefly responsible for the poor working of the Panchayats. Such bodies can only thrive in an atmosphere of co-operation and mutual goodwill an atmosphere conspicuous by its absence in most Jhelum villages. It is particularly disappointing that the movement should have proved a failure in a district where nearly every village has its retired Indian officers, and it must be confessed that these gentlemen frequently fail to pull their weight in civil life. Honorary Panchayat Officers have been appointed in each of the three Tahsils in the district, but the results of this experiment are hitherto disappointing. One of them has recently resigned in disgust at the poorness of the response to his efforts.”

The conclusions of the Commissioner, Multan, (Mr. Penny) are as follows:—

“The voters take very little interest in the election of panches and the panches do not risk their popularity in raising funds for the efficient working of Panchayats and the provision of amenities for the village. In fact Panchayats are inclined to become judicial benches and neglect the other duties enjoined on them by the Act. However, it is something that useful judicial work is being done and that, as for instance in the Muzaffargarh District, this side of their work is appreciated and is producing a demand for more Panchayats. Not that this tendency is universal. In the Montgomery District, the movement has made little progress and Panchayats are reported not to be popular. Everywhere too much depends on supervision and it is disappointing, that in the Multan District, for instance, the officer in charge was unable to do any inspections. The abolition of the posts of whole-time Panchayat Officers has given a very severe blow to the movement and has considerably retarded its progress."

The Commissioner of Lahore (Mr. Mitchell) (whose views have also been quoted above) concludes his review on a somewhat pessimistic note:—

"Generally speaking, Panchayats can not be regarded as a definite success, and that is so largely because there is an absence of real interest in administrative matters. In spite, however, of these defects one fact stands out prominently and that is, that Panchayats taken as a whole, are responsible for an appreciable outturn of judicial work both criminal and civil. The value of this outturn cannot be computed in money, but nevertheless the transference of this work from the regular paid establishment relieves the Local Government of financial liability on that account and enables litigants to obtain speedy justice at a low cost. This by itself may be a small matter; but it is something, and must be regarded as an augury of better results to follow."

The Government consider it fitting that the last verdict to be quoted should be the comparatively optimistic one of the Commissioner of Ambala (Khan Bahadur Mian Abdul Aziz):—

"In spite of the discouraging results in a number of districts it is essential to continue the system and to leave no stone unturned to secure the disposal of petty civil and criminal cases in the village by the elected representatives of the village. The transition from feudal ways of life to ways of life consistent with control of affairs by elected representatives, will take a long time—particularly in our villages. The task is beset with difficulties and the average official is prone more to criticise than to encourage but in spite of these handicaps some Panchayats have, within very marked limits of course, done useful work. Where the population of a village is heterogeneous or if more or less homogeneous is torn by feuds and factions elected representatives find it difficult to assert themselves successfully and in order to avoid reproach they avoid work. There is, however, no justification for gloomy views about the future of Panchayats."

ORDER.—Ordered that copies of this Review be forwarded to all Commissioners of Divisions and Deputy Commissioners in the Punjab, and be supplied to the Government of India in the Department of Education, Health and Lands.

Ordered also that the Review be published in the Punjab Gazette and that copies of its Urdu translation be supplied to Deputy Commissioners for the information of the Panchayats.
